WHO WE ARE

Tabula Rasa is a peer-reviewed biannual journal sponsored by Universidad Colegio Mayor de Cundinamarca (Bogotá, Colombia), working in the field of Social Sciences, particularly in the disciplines of Anthropology, History, Sociology, Social Work, Human Geography, and Cultural Studies. Therefore, it targets audiences interested in these fields, and spreads research, reflection on targeted issues, literature reviews, conference papers, book reviews, and discussions within the disciplines we cover.

MISSION

Tabula Rasa intends to help build social knowledge and academic networks, by publishing theoretical and empirical research reports, which are a vehicle for socializing research on the journal's fields of interest.

AUTHOR GUIDELINES

Tabula Rasa follows the open access policy for all papers published. Therefore, articles may be totally or partially reproduced, as long as they are used for scholar purposes and source is properly quoted, under Creative Commons guidelines (Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivs CC BY-NC-ND; <https://creativecommons.org/share-your-work/licensing-types-examples/licensing-examples/#by-nc-nd>). Besides the printed version, a fully open-access online version is available. Given this, authors published Tabula Rasa implicitly agree to publish under this policy, thus contributing to free knowledge spread. Tabula Rasa is published in Spanish, following APA (<http://normasapa.net/normas-apa-2016/>) standards for scientific papers. Tabula Rasa does not ask their authors to transfer their copyrights on papers published, nor it charges on article processing.

GUIDELINES FOR ARTICLE SUBMISSION

All texts shall be submitted to the Editor, who then will pass them on to the Editorial Committee. This will carry out a paper selection process, and will be in charge of choosing suitable peers for reviewing submissions. Tabula Rasa turns to reviewers external to the journal and to Universidad Colegio Mayor de Cundinamarca. Once your submission is done, you shall receive a confirmation of receipt, and will be included in the corresponding process.

Your submissions shall be sent to: info@revistatabularasa.org and l.montenegro@revistatabularasa.org

RECOMMENDATIONS AND CLARIFICATIONS

- Tabula Rasa adheres to the free circulation and (either in part or in full) reproduction of all papers published, provided they are properly cited and used with academic purposes.
- Any author shall state in written (in print or online), he or she authorizes their work in this journal pages, and that she or he is aware and agrees with Tabula Rasa's editorial policies. This means free reproduction from databases or the online version.
- Tabula Rasa does not ask their authors to transfer copyright. They keep their copyrights.
- Papers submitted must be unpublished, written by the stated author. Additionally, authors shall state they respect copyright or any third-party authorship. Also, they must not have editorial previous publishing commitments.
- The paper shall be submitted by e-mail to the journal address: info@revistatabularasa.org, in Word files without any additional format, along with all the accompanying material necessary for review and publication. Also, a copy shall be sent to the journal editor: Mr. Leonardo Montenegro to l.montenegro@revistatabularasa.org.
- All submissions shall include a brief author(s)'s CV.
- The written piece shall contain Spanish and English abstracts (and as possible in Portuguese) not over 150 words. Tabula Rasa recommends it includes the goals of the study or the research, basic procedures followed, main results and main conclusions in the paper.
- Between 3 and 4 keywords shall be presented and identified in Spanish, English (and as long as possible, in Portuguese).
- You shall state the name of the whole research project within which your (theoretical or empirical) research is inserted, and, whenever the case, funding organizations.
- The reference or bibliography list should include only texts quoted in the paper.

GUIDELINES FOR PAPER PRESENTATION

The length of the articles—including footnotes, quotations, tables, captions, and bibliographic references—should not exceed 10,000 (ten thousand) words. All of the pages shall be consecutively.

TABLES AND FIGURES

All graphic material shall be called in the body text, directly or among parentheses. It shall be presented separately and be consecutively numbered (figure 1, map 1, graph 1, and so on). It shall include the title and the source of the information or graphic material. The material shall be presented in TIF format (only), with no less than 300-dpi resolution. In case any reproduction permission is required, it will be on charge of the author.

TITLES AND SUBTITLES

The title of the document shall synthesize the main idea, and shall avoid words not serving to the purpose of conveying sense, making the title longer, and inducing confusion in the author. APA recommends restraining title length to 12 words. Subtitles show the main subdivisions in the manuscript, and serve to the purpose of guiding the reader on the different topics the piece addresses. No more than three subtitle hierarchies are recommended, which shall reflect accurately, the organization of the text.

- TITTLE (IN SMALL CAPS)
- First subtitle
- First section under the subtitle
  - Second section under the subtitle

FOOTNOTES AND QUOTES

Notes shall always be on page foot, they will serve to comment on, add or complement important information provided in the text. They cannot be bibliographic references, except for quotes from newspapers, magazines or judicial rulings—for example, rulings by the Constitutional Court, the Council of State, and so on—. Textual quotations exceeding three lines (or 40 words) or that need to be highlighted, shall be written on a different paragraph, indented on the left. Those that are included within the body text, shall be enclosed in quotation marks (“ ”).

CITATION MODEL (AUTHOR: YEAR, PAGE NUMBER)

Bibliographic citations will be done within the text, including the author(s)'s last name, the year of publication, and—in the case of textual quotes—the number(s) of pages. Like this: (Rodríguez, 1978, p. 427). Other examples are: two authors shall be separated by an ampersand (&): (López & Arango, 1970, p. 33); more than two authors is indicated by “et al.”: (Gómez et al., 1997, p. 66); more than two works by the same author(s), from the same year: (Díaz, 1998a, 1998b): works from several authors in the same citation: (Rodríguez, 1978; López & Arango, 1970, p. 33; Gómez et al., 1997).

BIBLIOGRAPHIC REFERENCES

The paper shall only contain the references quoted within the text, rather than bibliography lists. The list of bibliographic references shall be included at the end of all works, and be listed in strict alphabetic order. Names and last names shall be presented with the initial capitalized, rather than the whole word in capital letters. Each of the samples below illustrates a specific case. Again, no authors or work haven't been cited within the text may be included in the references.

PUBLISHING ETHICS AND MALPRACTICE

Tabula Rasa abides by the ethical guidelines for scientific journals, as stated by Elsevier, and not-for-profit site PublishingEthics.org. In that spirit, it recommends its authors to care strictly about quoting third parties in their submissions, by properly citing, whether literally quoting, paraphrasing or referring to third-parties' work, clearly stating the source any data was taken from. Also, it asks its authors to limit self-citations to 5% of their article, and if needed, to prefer the use of primary sources. Previous research data shall be quoted in as transparent way as possible. Similarly, we discourage redundant publication practices, upon the understanding that scholar publications are granted by public funds, so that for the sake of financial and scholar honesty, we consider this is a practice to be avoided.

In the same line, we invite all of our authors to state any conflict of interest when addressing any issue or topic, and—in the case of collective authorship—to clearly specify each author's contribution to the work presented. Additionally, all the authors must clearly accept responsibility on the final product to be published.
